FACTS & FANCIES

Frank Fairborn, Jr.

I WANT TO KNOW

The fire bell is ringing. Somebody's property is in peril. Maybe some little baby is going to be burned to death. The siren is screeching. Fire Chief Alf. LePage and his men are on their way.

What I want to know is . . . Who gave Chief LePage instructions to take that fire truck out of that fire hall?

Has he got a governmental order to back him up for so doing?

If he hasn't, then Lord Help Him, for he and his men will be behind barbed-wire before the sun sets tonight.

GRIMSBY YOUTH AND MONEY

During recent years many boys and girls have been able to earn their spending money by taking jobs in various employments.

It is important that they should learn to use this money wisely.

Some are inclined to let it slip through their fingers too easily, and to do extravagant things with it.

It is a fine idea if they would save a good part of it for their education.

Thrift is still an important virtue. The young people who are saving money regularly are acquiring an excellent habit.

Times may not always be as prosperous as they are now, and if they have accumulated sizable savings, these will help if later they want to go to college or take some professional or vocational course.

I would suggest to Principal Don Awde, that he take this idea up with his staff and with the Board of Education, and have a period, say once a month, set aside, where financial men like Mr. John E. Holder, of The Canadian Bank of Commerce; Earl J. Marsh, of Niagara Packers Ltd., and several others that I could mention, give our "teen-agers" an instructive talk on this question.

PERFECT ALIBI

What would be said in Lincoln County if when the House of Commons had 31 votes during the session, Mac Lockhart missed 29 of them? Apologists for the Lincoln M.P., even members of the Board of Strategy would be red to the ears when chaffed about it by Liberal friends. But the perfect alibi for such a performance comes from the pen of The Windsor Star Columnist, W. L. Clark, and O Boy! how gib it reads and sounds. Score 100 for this comment:

Some of the boys are having fun at the expense of Murray Clark, Liberal M.P. for Essex South. There were 31 divisions in the House of Commons last session and Mr. Clark missed 29 of them. Just why he didn't miss the other two might be hard to explain.

But that does not mean that Mr. Clark was failing in his care for his constituents. He may not have been in the Commons to cast a vote on some foolish division forced by the Opposition, but his people knew where to find him when they wanted anything done.

Mr. Clark represents the only high tariff rural constituency in Canada. That is a job that calls for playing his cards close to his vest. But, when the Dominion Government wants an authoritative opinion on fruits and vegetables, Mr. Clark's advice is usually sought. And, being close to the farmers, he knows what they want and what they need.

Some people sit in the House of Commons day in and day out and never miss a division. But, when it comes to getting anything to help their constituents, they might just as well be a million miles distant.

Mr. Clark has told the whole story except to point out what the South Essex Member actually did for his constituents, or what benefits did really accrue from his representation. And, naturally, when an alibi like the foregoing is being conjured up, hush, hush, on that $6,000 indemnity, $2,000 tax free.

The fellow who will do an unfair thing for you is just as likely to do an unfair thing against you.

A MINISTER SCOLDS

The St. Thomas Times Journal reports a unique case of a pastor of the Christian Church at Lanark, Ill., not only scolding his flock but showing quite a percentage of his people up. He is Reverend Harmon H. Bro, with wife and baby, and he assumed the pastorate at $200 per month. The offerings fell $60 a week behind, and a trust fund was being drawn upon for current outlay. The pastor took a job at $34.68 per week as a railway section hand and continued to lead the church paying $5 per week out of his wages to the offertory. He made this announcement:

"I want either to live as minister of this church largely on the income from its living members or I don't want my salary. I won't take it. You can fire me if you like. Meantime, I'll keep working on the railroad as a section hand, supporting myself and my family, until this church gets under its load."

"This isn't a publicity stunt. I didn't know it would get into the papers. Something drastic had to be done to wake up our members. The only thing I know to do is to try setting an example. If a section hand can support the church anybody can."

This looks like an obvious case of stirring the conscience and the pocketbook together, a double play from the pulpit. Rev. Bro. is surely a man of intestinal fortitude. There must have been a great buzz of talk around the Sunday dinner table after his exorcism.

CLOTHES

We wish the fashion makers for both men and women would get into a huddle together and do a little evening-up.

Men cling to the fashions of yesteryear while the women all try to wear the fashions of the year that is yet to come.

The consequence is the men look rather silly all parcelled up in ties, etc., in summer and the women look rather silly with their sheer clad legs in winter.

Last week while perspiration ran down our nose we looked with envy at the ladies with their skirts and blouses. We envied the idea of the air circulating along their skin from their short skirts to their shoulders while our trousers stuck to our hide.

If it weren't for convention—and for our knobby knees—we would have gone out and bought a light weight kilt and a blouse and let conventions go hang.

We almost compromised on a fetching pair of shorts—until we noticed a couple of other fellows wearing shorts.

We must admit that nature must have looked ahead and prepared for the time when the girls would unblushing show their legs to the public but never expected men would do so.

However the summer is swiftly drawing to a close and some day next December, standing on a windswept street corner, we will no longer envy the way the air circulates along the ladies' skins from their short skirts to their shoulders.

True friends are a strong protection, and the memory of them is a great consolation.

Primordial Prank

(By John Gould, in Christian Science Monitor)

Probably nobody will pay any attention, but I should like to suggest that the original forbidden fruit was a kumquat or shagbark, or something like that, and not an apple. The decision to push this line of thought came today when I rounded a corner of the wall unexpectedly and saw some heels disappearing into the bushes right in line with the Red Astrachan tree, which is now shedding its ripened fruit like manna.

It seemed to me that "stealing" apples is too fine a thing to go by any longer in the category of crimes and misdemeanors. It is time we excused it for what it is—the inalienable right of small boys and girls, whose carefree feet take them this time of year through the fields and woods. It is probably best to set an arbitrary age when the right ceases to apply—say 12. But under 12 I grant the right, and I was glad to see those heels skipping into the alders.

There, but for the years, went I. And I had to laugh, because of all the things in this world prosecuted unnecessarily, the most needless is a boy's stealing apples. The thing is a little hard to follow. If a boy wants an apple, all he has to do is step into the first yard he comes to and say, "May I have an apple?"

The answer has got to be yes, because even if a farmer didn't want to give a boy an apple, this unexpected request would certainly disarm him. But if this would render all farmers generous old codgers, it would also do away with all chances to steal apples, so the very idea is silly. So a youngster learns, if he doesn't already know that he must never go into a yard and ask for an apple.

The thing to do, of course, is sneak behind the elm trees at the lower end of the orchard, crawl up along the wall on hands and knees, and then sally under the tree best equipped for the occasion. Where your shirt tucks into your belt makes a handy sack, and you can stuff apples in there until you feel you have been discovered, after which you

FUNNY MONEY

Ranking amongst the strangest objects that have ever been used as a medium of exchange in the whole history of money, the solid, thick stone wheels of the Island of Yap, in the Carolines, are still in use to this day.

Ranging in size from a foot to 12 feet in diameter, with a hole in the centre to permit their being carried on a heavy pole, this currency is quarried from a special type of fine, white, close-grained limestone on Babelthau, about 400 miles south of Yap.

Because of the difficulty of moving some of the more bulky "coins" or fel, as they are called on the island, the transfer of ownership quite often consists of a mere verbal agreement. A family may live in comparative affluence without having set eyes upon their wealth. But such remote control ownership is acknowledged by all.

Funny money, all right, but when a man can buy the necessities of life on the say-so of someone who says he owns a pile of stones out in some distant quarry, which he has never seen, it looks like a country of unlimited credit, and a pretty good one to live in.

LOOKING AT DEATH

We have all felt the urge to hit the open road in a high-powered car, step hard on the gas, and drive her "all out." Few of us give vent to the urge. But too many of us, as we thread through traffic and push along the highways, tend to take chances to beat the other fellow or just to "save" a few minutes here and there.

The Waterloo Chronicle takes a look behind the scenes at some of these cases where such a thing was attempted:

"If by any chance you think that you are too good, when you are behind the wheel of a car, to get into any of these accidents, go down and take a look at some of the wrecks that are in a few of the garages that specialize in salvaging them. Take a look at the blood-spattered windshield and seats, at the package of cigarettes on the floor or the shoe with its lace burnt open. If you take the trouble to ask who the driver was you will probably be surprised to find that he was just another fellow like yourself. A nice fellow to talk to, to play golf or go fishing with, but once he got behind the wheel of his car and had all that power at his fingertips he was a changed man. Then he wanted to be 'out ahead.' He probably was for a little while; but he is a long way behind now . . . and the sad part of it is that he will never get a chance to change his way of thinking."

HIGH STANDARD TOWNS

It is a characteristic of progressive towns that they have certain standards they try to live up to. If the condition of some street or public property is not up to their ideas of what a town like theirs should have, they try to interest people in the idea of improving that feature. They talk about it to their friends, they may write to the home newspaper about it, and they may bring it up before some local organization.

In a progressive community such an idea is likely to get many adherents, and means for improving that condition are discussed. If the idea is practical, there is a good chance that people will be willing in due time to give whatever of time, effort, and money is needed to make that improvement.

There may be farmers who take their part in this too seriously, but most of them feel it is a kind of play acting, and they faithfully bellow out, "Get out of there!" This enhances the general feeling of validity, and youth has chalked up another signal victory. Once in a while a farmer overplays his line, as when he shouts, "Beat it! If you want apples, come and ask!"

Come and ask, indeed—you don't catch many with that one. Not above once, I got caught. I went and asked Ruel Hansome for an apple, after he had loudly suggested this approach when we were snitching Minister apples, and what did he do but give me about two pecks in a big paper bag, and I had to carry them home and explain to Mother. Mother knew we had several barrels of Minister apples on our own tree, and I never felt the event improved my intellectual standing around the house.

Once, when we were ranging the neighbourhood with our nets out for whatever swims, so to speak, we stole apples in a dozen different places, and so came to our place. This presented an ethical problem, and I naturally concluded I couldn't steal my own apples. So I stood alone in the road and the other boys all went in and stole apples, after which we moved on to unrestricted trees. At least they favoured me by stealing my apples—and I well remember we used to skip those orchards that had inferior fruit. If you want good apples, find out where the children poach the most.

Because they're still poaching, and as long as there are children and apples, the primordial prank will go on and on. It should, and the prank should be honoured for what it is. If that ancient tree in that ancient garden really was an apple, then we should remember with favourable discernment that poor Adam never had his boyhood.

Note:- Some day I will tell you an apple and watermelon story of my own.—Ed.

SAME TROUBLES REVEALED BY OLD PAPERS

Found—a remedy to cure colds in three to six hours! At least that was the claim made by a firm in the Halifax Evening Recorder and tri-weekly Times of July 27, 1871.

The yellow, 76-year-old newspaper was turned up in a Halifax home recently and provided a neat comparison between papers of today and yesterday.

The Evening Recorder of 1871 had no news on its front page. Instead, page one consisted entirely of newspaper advertisements, a practice still prevalent among some papers in the British Commonwealth.

The ads of eight decades ago extolled and "elixir of tar to cure a cold in three and quill . . . Japanese in torquise and bone medicine which, it was said, cures rheumatism . . . and asthma, bronchitis, claimed, could cure one of "a host of other still unnamed, blood diseases and all. The preparation mentioned in no time was for recognition. Obviously has waited a long time to be rediscovered. Hotel bars were offered from $5 to $20 a day.

Today's householder would sich listed five residence houses for sale, while none had houses, all with 16 to 15 dwellings and, in one barn, milk houses, gardeners' case, a sawmill.

FOR LONGER LIFE

The horse and pony live thirty years. And nothing know of wines and beers. The goat and sheep at twenty die. And never taste of Scotch and Rye. The cows drink water by the ton. And at eighteen are mostly done. The dog at fifteen catches in. Without the aid of Rum and Gin. The cat in milk and water soaks. And then at twelve short years it croaks. The modest, sober, home-dry hen lays eggs for noggins, then dies at ten. All animals are strictly dry. They neither live and sinless die. But sinful, sinful, Rum-soaked men survive for three score years and ten!

NEW DINNER PAJAMAS

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Simple and comfortable, but with a dash which puts them in the dinner time class, these pajamas worn by pretty Marie MacDonald of MGM are the design of Irene. The dressy trick overtakes the navy blue polka dots on the white crepe fabric. . . Each is topped by a gilt sequin. The sleeved top is cut above the sashline, and the sash is paddy green. Gilt rims the bodice buttons, made of the same white bengaline which they fasten.

STRICTLY CANADIAN

By CLAIRE WALLACE

Canadian college girls would shudder at the thought of always being chaperoned when they go to a dance or show—and Canadian boys would moan at the extra expense of paying for Mama, too. But in Puerto Rico this summer, I saw lots of chaperoned couples who didn't seem to mind a bit. It is etiquette in that country and accepted with grace. They tell me it is the mother who sometimes gets tired of it all. If her daughter is very popular, the mother is on the go practically all the time and worn out by the end of the season.

You'd wonder how romance gets a chance with these well-chaperoned young couples, but I noticed at social affairs in San Juan that while the chaperoning mother or relative drove to and from the affair with the young people, once at the supper-dance or party, she joined some of the other chaperones at a table, thus leaving the young couple to have a table by themselves and enjoy each other's company.

In Canada the chaperone is about as dead as the Dodo bird, and it is up to a girl to be her own chaperone.

What would you think if the clerk in a Canadian store came from behind the counter to serve you in her bare feet? That happened to me in San Juan, and in another shop the storekeeper's wife, who waited on me, wore a gorgeous diamond latched into the side of her nose! It is a city of fascinating contrasts, particularly in food and the serving of it. One course in a restaurant might be luscious tropical fruit served on a silver salver, and the next course the favorite native dish of beans and rice, baked on a banana leaf.

Every time I tasted anything unusual or particularly delicious in food, I thought of Martha Poole, of Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, who is one of the best cooks in the whole world, and keenly interested in condiments and customs, new and different. Martha would have been intrigued with the dishes made of banana leaves used in a San Juan restaurant. The banana leaf was cut into a "dish" about six inches long and four wide. It obligingly curled up a little at the edges to hold the food. Filled with a mixture of rice and bean and sauce, the whole thing was put into the oven. When the dish was cooked the banana leaf was black and hard. It was set on the table as an individual ramekin dish, and when the food had been eaten out of it, the banana leaf dish was thrown away, making dish-washing unnecessary. Nice trick, if you can find a banana tree.

Questions—Etiquette—Answers

TIPPING NURSES: From Lake Huron district, Ontario, J.M.R. writes: "Is it necessary to tip the regular duty nurses when one is ill in a private room in a city hospital? A friend of mine had to occupy room after an operation because her nerves were bad. She had three special nurses for the first three days after the serious operation and, as she was a woman of quite moderate means, found it all she could afford to pay them and pay for her hospital room. When the special nurses were dismissed, the floor nurse who waited on this lady were quite nasty because she couldn't afford to tip them. She was a good patient and did not ask for much attention. Please tell me if it is not considered proper to be in a private room if one cannot afford to tip."

ANSWER: It is never necessary to tip nurses, and they do not expect it, either from public ward patients or private room patients.

THE MIXING BOWL

Hello Homemakers! We've been to the Canadian National Exhibition and what fun. Never saw so much interest in the Exhibition in my life. Little wonder since every exhibitor has gone all out to show us the use of his products.

Of special interest to homemakers is the Shopping School in the "Women's World" at the Coliseum. Here you will find a modern grocery store, and the attendants will give you shopping budgets assembled for low cost, moderate cost and fancy menus. You should pick up copies or write to the Women's Section for them if you can't get down to the Fair.

Careful meal planning and skillful shopping can do much to ease the financial strain on the food budget. Approved methods of cooking and adequate storage facilities are also important and this point is proven by the many attractive displays of the manufacturers in the Electrical Building.

Everywhere at the Fair, visitors are directed and instructed by trained personnel, by illuminated signs, by "active" displays and colourful exhibits. Do go and look at the demonstrations. I can't begin to tell you all about the C.N.E. It's the best I've seen.

Here are a few manufacturer's recipes which we enjoyed.

BASKET SALAD

Hollow out grapefruit; set scoop-out fruit aside for breakfast. Line shells with endive; fill with drained fruit salad and serve with this dressing.

NUT-DATE DRESSING

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup syrup from the fruit salad, 2 tbsps. cornstarch, $\frac{1}{4}$ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. vinegar, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup finely chopped dates, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup cream or top milk, whipped, $\frac{1}{4}$ cup chopped walnuts. Mix together the syrup, cornstarch, salt and vinegar. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture is thick and clear. Continue cooking for 3 or 4 minutes longer. Cool slightly; stir in dates and nuts. Fold in cream, whipped light but not stiff. Makes about 2 cups dressing.

DEEP SOUTH VEAL ROLL

Remove bones from 2 whole veal cutlets, $\frac{1}{2}$ inch thick. Flatten cutlets with mallet. Spread each with half of the following stuffing: (Sauté 2-3 cup chopped onions and 1 cup diced celery in $\frac{1}{4}$ cup fat. Add 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon pepper, pinch of rosemary and savory and 1 cup soft bread crumbs.) Roll up, secure. Brown in 3 tablespoons fat in Dutch Oven. Add 1-2 cup water, 8 sweet potatoes. Cover, simmer 40 mins. Add 2-3 cups green peas, 8 peeled orange slices, 2 tablespoons currant jelly. Cover, continue cooking 20 mins. Eight servings.

SPARERIBS

The flavor of spareribs and savory celery stuffing blend perfectly. Place dressing in baking dish, cover with spareribs, or place dressing between two matching sections of ribs that are stitched or tied together. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, rub with flour. Bake uncovered at 325-350 degs. F. for 1½ hours.

CREOLE FUDGE CAKE

Preparation: Have shortening at room temperature. Line bottoms of two 8-inch layer pans with paper; grease. Set oven for moderate heat (300 degs. F.). Sift flour once before measuring. (All measurements are level.)

Measure into sifter:

2 cups sifted flour, 1 tsp. soda, $\frac{1}{2}$ cup packed brown sugar, $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. salt.

Measure into mixing bowl:

$\frac{1}{2}$ cup shortening

Measure into cup:

1 cup milk, 1 tsp. vanilla.

Have ready:

2 eggs, unbeaten, 3 squares unsweetened chocolate melted.

Stir shortening just to soften.

Set dry ingredients, add $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of milk, and mix until all flour is dampened. Then beat 2 minutes. Add eggs, melted chocolate, and remaining milk and beat 1 minute longer. (Count only actual beating time. Or count beating strokes. Allow about 150 full strokes per minute. Scrape bowl and spoon often.)

Baking: Turn into pans. Bake in moderate oven (300 degs. F.) about 30 minutes. Spread seven-minute frosting between the layers and on top and sides of cake, and coat with 2 squares of unsweetened chocolate melted with 2 teaspoons of butter.

For a happy, healthy start on the day's activities, serve breakfast like these:

LION CUBS BORN AT ZOO

Without one smile among them, the four survivors of quintuplet lion cubs born at the Baltimore, Md. zoo, pose for their first photograph. The fifth cub failed to live more than a week. Proud parents of the four sleepy cubs are Kansas City Kitty and Sioux City Sun, otherwise known as Jim and Sis. Two of the kittens are males and two are females, weighing between three and four pounds apiece.

FOOT FREE FASHION

By ALICE ALDEN

One of our summer pets is the sandal that goes with everything, and ideal for traveling light. Bernardo calls his sandal "The Belt" for it is made up entirely of straps. Right with everything from casual street wear, also sports and lounging things, the sandal has inch-wide straps passing behind the ankle and criss-crossing belt-like over the instep to buckle at the outer sides of the foot. A wide loop over the large toe holds the sandal more securely to the foot and gives freedom in walking.

DRAPED DINNER DRESS

BY PRUNELLA WOOD

The classic draperies of Greece have been borrowed and fastened into modern fashion for this medium-light gray crepe frock, intended for the less formal evenings where a long dress is still preferred. Your beau could wear his dark sack suit when you wear this frock, and probably thank you for the sartorial break. Easy to wear a bra with this model, and you'll find the high, draped waistband a measurement minimizer. There is a center slit at the front hem of the narrow skirt, an ease for dancing.

NEW HEADLINES

Drapery gives a soft, graceful accent to many of the prettiest hats prepared for late summer and early fall wear. Anita Danra makes much use of a scarf drape to soften this attractive little pillbox of gleaming capucine and ice blue satin, the fabric expertly handled. The graceful scarf extends from one side to fall softly over the shoulders and make a nice face-framing notion.

...so Mary will take up nursing after all

IT LOOKED for a while as if a temporary financial problem in the family might keep Mary from finishing "High". If she had to quit school to help the family income that would have meant good-bye to her hopes of becoming a nurse.

But here she is, starting her final year. Did her Dad suddenly come into some money?

No . . . and yes. He consulted his bank manager, who told him how the bank, through personal loans, often helped people to meet just such situations. Arrangements were made, and now Mary will take up nursing after all.

In 1946 Canada's banks made half a million personal loans to Canadian men and women.

BUTTERFLY FASHION MOTIFS

The butterfly, airy symbol of the flutterby attitude toward pretty things, is having a revival in 1947. The gold plated eyeglass frames, pictured, flatter and amuse by butterfly wings that top them. The very pale blue satin afternoon blouse has a butterfly of its own fabric at the lowish neckline; gloves to match, with soft jersey palms, have butterfly bows at the thumbline.

ANKLE LENGTH ATTRACTION

The short dinner dress is having a big season, appearing at many smart late summer dances in town and country, and is thoroughly at home, on a roof garden, or a country club veranda. Navy and powder blue striped taffeta is the formula for this good-looker. It is made with unpressed pleats designed to give skirt fullness. The separate stole, with poppy bouquet, tucks under the corded waistline tie of the dress.

DOTTED SWISS OF NYLON YARN

Crisp and sheer as muslin can be . . . but with the magic firmness and sturdiness of delicate nylon yarn, this new fabric is a fine choice for the bridal robe, be it headed for heirloom antiquity or wardrobe uses after the ceremony. The washable non-stretch, sag cloth lends itself to ruffling, to a train with a stylish swish, to slim moulding, lush fullness, and is incapable of storage deterioration.

V.O.N. NURSES CHANGE

St. Catharines, Aug. 25—Miss Hazel Cryderman, nurse in charge of the Victorian Order of Nurses here for the past six years, has resigned to take a similar position in Kitchener, it was announced today. She will commence her duties there on Sept. 1st.

Miss Laura Warman of Toronto, assistant here for the past year, has been appointed by the V.O.N. board to take over the position of nurse-in-charge. Miss Muriel Morgan of Hamilton, who has just completed a public health nursing course at the University of Toronto on a V.O.N. scholarship, has been appointed assistant.

GRIMSBY'S GRAND OLD LADY

Mrs. W. A. Patterson (formerly Wismer) will, come August 31st, have lived in the Grimsby district for a matter of 95 years, in other words all her life. In spite of her many summers, Mrs. Patterson, who lives with her son, Emery U., and grandson, Owen R., on Main St. East, enjoys a full life and excellent health.

Mrs. Patterson was born in a small house on the lake front at Vineland in 1852 and lived there until Sept. 13, 1880, when she married W. A. Patterson of Grimsby, for many years Tax Collector of North Grimsby. The couple went to live on a 100 acre dairy farm on the Grimsby mountain, from where they moved in 1900 to the farm on Main East where Mrs. Patterson still resides.

Mrs. Patterson's forebearers were of Pennsylvania Dutch stock and they must have been a hardy lot for Mrs. Patterson is, comparatively speaking, and except for a few infirmities of old age, as healthy as her grandson. She is never bothered with colds and such minor ailments. At the age of 84 when she broke her hip it healed like a 15-year-old youngster's. Up to a few years ago Mrs. Patterson did a great deal of beautiful fancy work but in later years failing eyesight has put a stop to this.

All in all, grandmother Patterson is a very remarkable woman and we of The Independent staff wish her all the best when she is 95 years young on August 31st.

DISNEY TRACES DOWN UNCLE REMUS ORIGIN

Who was Uncle Remus? Was he actually a living character taken over by Joel Chandler Harris for his famous stories of the old South? Was he merely a child of Harris' exuberant imagination?

This old question, always brought up in connection with the animal fables that made Uncle Remus as familiar and important a figure in world literature as Don Quixote and Faust, has been answered by the study of Harris that Walt Disney conducted during production of his latest Technicolor musical "Song of the South," his first live-action photoplay.

Biographies and letters of Harris indirectly say that Uncle Remus was a portly Bob Cavers, or of Old Heribert, Negro servant whom Harris had known as a child and in whom he had always been fond of for his stories. He also denies, in his private papers, that Uncle Remus, a Negro in Forsyth, Georgia, was the model for the Remus of his books.

Instead, Disney discovered, Uncle Remus was composite of at least a dozen men, and the Harris slaves are not only Uncle Remus states as told by collections of folk in many cases these men, but also Harris himself.

In his screen production Disney uses the medium of integrated cartoon to visualize the actual stories of Brer Rabbit, Brer Bear, and Brer Fox as told by Remus. But the screen drama is a play human situations portrayed by human cast that includes Jim Baskett as the old Negro master, Ruth Warrick and Eric as the parents of Bobby.

TRADE SECRETS—There are tricks to every trade, and to every sport. This includes pigeon racing. We read the following was practised on male pigeons in the report of the Pigeons' Grand National held in England. Three thousand birds were released near Bordeaux and then raced for their home loft. Sometimes the pigeons would fly almost to their front door then settle down on a limb to rest while their owners gnawed their fingernails. This is the way they fixed Mr. Pigeon. An expert says: "The racing pigeon is essentially a monomaniac. The scheme is to shatter his domestic tranquility by placing a incubator bird in the contestants' love-nest just before he begins his main journey. The homing-pigeon, no fool, has a shrewd idea what he is going to find when he gets home. The one notion in his head is to get back there and make a triangle of it with the least possible loss of time. But these are the exceptions. The sport of pigeon-flying, despite its rapid recent climb into big money values, still remains one of the least suited of modern race-games."

SMOKE McBRIDE and his LEGION team pretty nearly did not trim up WINONA on Monday night in their first game of the second round of the O.A.A. series. EXPLORERS USED
VERY TINY BOATS

Canada was first discovered by the French navigator, Jacques Cartier, who set sail from St. Malo with two small ships on April 20, 1534, to discover new lands to the West.

In twenty days the voyagers reached Bonavista, Newfoundland. Moving northward, he entered the Strait of Belle Isle, explored the coast of Labrador, then turning south, followed the western coast of Newfoundland as far as Cape St. John.

The intrepid explorer sighted the Magdalen Islands, Prince Edward Island, visited the entrance of the Miramichi River, Chaleur Bay and Gaspé Basin in July of 1534. He made a second voyage in 1545, ascending the St. Lawrence as far as Hochelaga (now Montreal).

In 1541 Jacques Cartier made a third voyage to Canada.

of Road Superintendent F. E. Weir. The September sessions of council will be held on Tuesday, September 16.

COUNCIL "HOUNDED"

ering county roads in urban municipalities be deferred until January of next year. The Special Roads Committee was requested by council to submit a report on the through roads and all connecting links of county roads in urban municipalities.

Council granted permission to Mr. Peter Wall to transport buildings, purchased by him at Niagara-on-the-Lake, along the county roads to the Niagara Canning Company property on the Lake Shore Road.

Permission was also granted for the removal of and immediate replacement of guide rails, where necessary, replacement to be either permanent or temporary if property lighted, under the supervision and with the approval of the Road Superintendent. However, Mr. Wall was required to take out a bond of indemnity in the amount of $50,000, to guarantee the county against any damage to persons or property which might be caused in the moving of the buildings.

Council also decided, on the further recommendation of the Road Committee, that in future all applicants for permits to move buildings over county roads be required to post bonds covering any liability which might be incurred by the county by such action.

As the council closed the August sessions three by-laws were passed authorizing the purchase of certain pieces of land in Concessions 4 and 5 in the Township of Jainesboro for the rounding of corners on county roads and also to adjust the salary

"We would have had more applicants already but we have been cleaned right out of application forms," he declared. "I know that a number of solicitors are preparing to make applications for their clients and other people have asked me about it."

Under the new ruling announced a week ago, relief is to be provided for owners of tenanted dwellings who need the accommodation themselves, provided they can prove "grievous hardship" due to lack of possession. Both landlord and tenant are allowed to argue their case before commissioners specially appointed by the administrator in Ottawa.

Mr. Murdoch told The Standard that hearings would definitely be heard in St. Catharines of cases involving landlords and tenants in the district served by the local office. No announcement has yet been made as to who the commissioner will be for this district.

Terms of the new ruling provide that if a landlord's application is granted, the tenant must vacate at the end of the current lease. However, the landlord must promise not to sell or rent the accommodation for at least one year.

Hearings will possibly commence here next month, it is believed.

APPOINTED DIRECTOR

An advertising executive before the war, Col. Dick, now 34, was an officer of the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry when the United engaged in the Dieppe raid. He was severely wounded and on his recovery was chosen a member of a party of Canadians which went to the Middle East as observers during the North African campaign.

He later served in Sicily and Italy with the 1st Canadian Infantry Division and with the 8th Armored Division in Northwest Europe.

After the 6th Division was formed for service in the Pacific, Col. Dick was appointed chief of staff to Maj.-Gen. R. M. Hoffmeister of Vancouver. On the collapse of Japan he was appointed Canadian military attaché to Washington and subsequently attended the United States Command and Staff College at Fort Leavenworth.

Harnessing Another 81,000 Horsepower for Hydro

People sometimes ask us what we are doing about providing more electricity for Ontario. Many know how close we are now to using up all our present supply.

Since the end of the war, Hydro's peak load demand has increased approximately 500,000 horsepower or more than 25% of the highest wartime demand, and is still mounting.

What are we doing about it?

Above is a part, but only a part, of the answer. It shows the great power development at Stewartville, on the Madawaska River in Eastern Ontario, which was started many months ago when materials and labor were in even shorter supply than now. It will give you 81,000 horsepower commencing next year.

With other Hydro developments being rushed to completion, an added 500,000 horsepower will be available in the next five years. In the meanwhile we must all use Hydro sparingly so there will be enough to go around.

THE RAIN-MAKERS

(By HOMER GROV, in Reader's Digest)

To us, in the Corn Belt, it seems as if every known hazard in the world attacks corn—drought, hail, wind, cutworms, the European corn borer. But there is nothing that quite takes the heart out of a farmer so much as to see his corn "burn up" in a killing drought. There it is, row upon row, acre upon acre, and it lies there in its grayish bed, like a sick child, growing paler and paler, and there is nothing in the world he can do for it. The leaves curl up, the silk withers and becomes so brittle it falls at a touch. The farmer walks out across his field—a lonely, sad figure. "We may get some nubbins," he says when he comes in.

One day when I was a boy my father said, "Get ready and we'll go to town and see the rainmakers."

Soon we were jogging along the dusty road, on each side of us the suffering, gasping, dying corn. Other teams were jogging toward town, and great clouds of dust arose. The women sat with veils over their mouths to keep from sucking it down. But we boys sat proudly with our faces bared, hating the dust as it came.

The Corn Belt had many rainmakers: everybody knew their names and believed in them or didn't, just as people believe in certain rabbis or don't. Some rainmakers made a flat charge, let the rain fall where it might; others charged so much an acre. But there was one good thing: all of them worked on the basis of "no rain, no pay."

As we drew near the depot, the crowd became thicker. The railroad had set the rainmaker's boxcar on a siding. A rope had been stretched to keep the crowd from getting too close, for it was a secret how the man made it rain. I worked my way near and at last caught a glimpse. I was disappointed. For I had expected to see an exceedingly tall man, with long hair and maybe a cape. Instead he was of medium height and had stopped shoulders.

Windows had been cut in the bumper. One end was for sleeping and eating, my pecking revealed, and the other was for the chemicals and gases that were going to save our corn. And in the roof, over this end, was a hole. The little stooped man climbed the iron ladder to the roof of the car where he studied the sky. We held our breath.

Down again he went, and now there was a great stirring inside the car. In a few minutes a grayish gas began coming out the stovepipe hole in the roof—the most evil-smelling stuff we had ever encountered. But if it took that to make it rain, we could stand it. The theory was that this gas went up and drops of moisture congealed around the particles and down came the rain. It seemed simple and logical to us.

People visited, neighborhood news was exchanged, corn news. People joked a little, but not much; the situation was too desperate. Then a man came among us selling umbrellas. That made us laugh a little.

A long wait. Men fed their horses out of the back ends of hacks. Some people went home to dinner. The gas continued to go up.

Suddenly there was great excitement: someone shouted, "There's a cloud!" And sure enough there was one, about as big as a horse blanket. We gazed upon the rainmaker as if he were a god.

As suddenly as it had appeared, the horse blanket disappeared. The afternoon wore on. The evil-smelling gas continued to rise—but not a cloud. Smart alecks said, "I told you so. He's a fake." The believers stuck by him. My faith never wavered.

Chores are chores, however, so when milking time came we went home. That evening we sat on the porch and looked out across the dying corn and our hearts were heavy. Pa spoke of taxes. There would be trouble this year, paying them. Movers would be going by—people who had lost their farms.

Pa studied the sky. He came back and sat down in the rocking chair. "Well, I just dunno," he said. "But it looks a little more on the favorable side."

Bedtime came. Heat filled the room like smoke in the smokehouse. Suddenly there was a spot on the porch—then another and another. The dog came in and curled up.

Our spirits leaped and so did the spirits of the farm. Soft, heart-filling music came from the cows; the milkin' kicked up their heels, the cows grunted contentedly—sweet, lovely music.

We went to bed, the rain spot-taring on the roof; the rain barrel began to roar. The drought was broken, and we knew why. And we were thankful to God for the wonderful man who had come among us.

It hardly seems possible today that I once went to town to see a rainmaker save our crops. But I believed it then and so did most people.

One of the earliest and most spectacular rainmakers to come into our section was Melbourne, a kind of cornfield Barnum. Melbourne usually erected on the fair grounds a building with four windows, one opening to each point of the compass. Into this were wheeled tanks and coils and electrical batteries, all covered with tarpaulin. Ropes were stretched around the building, no one but his own men could enter. In the roof was a flue, through which the mysterious gases were allowed to escape.

it rained so hard that a committee waited on him and demanded that he "shut off" the rain. He calmly told them he would do nothing about it. And he didn't.

But at last luck ran against him. A series of cool, windy nights set in and, try as he would, he could not produce rain. But the people of Goodland, Kansas, where he had established headquarters, believed in him; they'd seen results. A call came from Nebraska. He was to add to a group of Goodland citizens his secret formula for rainmaking, and left.

Goodland became the rainmaking center. Three companies were organized: The Interstate Artificial Rain Company, The Swisher Rain Company of Goodland and The Artificial Rain Company. They ranged far and wide, and money flowed back to the banks.

Meantime, working for the Rock Island Railroad was a train dispatcher named C. E. Jewell. He had been experimenting, but he lacked means. An official of the road heard of Jewell's work and persuaded his colleagues that, if they helped the farmers produce, the road would get more business. So the officials told Jewell he could give up dispatching and go out and make it rain.

Jewell trained two other crews, the railroad converted boxcars into rainmaking laboratories, and these went up and down the line. Everything Jewell touched turned to rain. He had a telegram from a man in Britton, S. D., saying that the river had risen so high that his calves were in danger of drowning, and would Mr. Jewell please stop the rain. Jewell wired back: "Can't stop the rain. The machine is wound up for 90 days."

When detractors in Wichita became too busy, Jewell said he would turn Douglas Avenue into a canal. And he just about did, for an exceedingly heavy rain sent rivers and creeks out of their banks. His believers were not at all surprised. Meantime, the Rock Island flourished and farmers acclaimed it for its fine work.

The Corn Belt wasn't the only place where belief in rainmakers prevailed. In California, a former sewing machine agent became famous as "Rainmaker" Hatfield. He was more cautious than the men of the Middle West. "I only claim," he said, "that I can induce nature to release, by way of precipitation, the moisture which the air already has." He was successful. In March 1912 he was offered $4000 by the ranchers at Hemet, Calif., if he would make it rain. He got the money.

In 1916 sunny California was experiencing what it called "the worst drought in history." Rainmaker Hatfield was sent for. He made three propositions: (1) He would fill San Diego's Morena reservoir. (2) He would produce 30 inches of rain free of charge, but for all over that he would have to have $500 an inch. (3) He would deliver 40 inches of rain free, but for every inch over that he would have to have $1000.

The desperate city council accepted his offer, but craftily did not mention which of the propositions it was agreeing to.

Hatfield went to the Morena dam, built mysterious towers, and sent up his gases. In no time at all it was raining. But he must have been a little surprised, for 35.91 inches of it came down—the worst flood in local history. The city's losses ran into millions, and irate property owners threatened to sue the city for having produced such a storm. The harassed city council took it out on poor Hatfield. They said they hadn't ordered so much rain, and refused to pay. He said they hadn't set any limit and presented a bill for $10,000. The council finally agreed to abide by the written opinion of the city attorney. The city attorney carefully thought his way through it and announced that the rain was an Act of God and that Hatfield hadn't had anything to do with it. For his outstanding job, Rainmaker Hatfield did not get a penny.

Events meanwhile were moving against the rainmakers. One was the increased efficiency of the weather bureau: some detractors said that a rainmaker wouldn't undertake a job for a certain day unless he had seen the forecast. Wet years came when no rainmaker was needed at all. Jewell was back at his old job of train dispatching; Melbourne had disappeared.

There is probably now not a farmer in all the Corn Belt who believes in rainmakers.

KEEPING COOL
In addition to wearing light, loose clothing, Canadians should drink a little water at frequent intervals, to offset heat in summer. Sweetened drinks, taken in excess quantities, create greater thirst. Medical officers suggest that a five-grain salt table water or three times a day, will help compensate for system of water and salt in the body to prevent through perspiration, heat cramps.

(St. Catharines Standard)
First case of its kind in St. Catharines police court. John Palechuck, 29 Prospect Avenue, was arraigned Tuesday before Magistrate H. D. Hallett charged with 23 violations of the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Palechuck is charged that on 23 occasions between December of 1945 and May of 1946 he made false statements which enabled him to obtain insurance payments. The charge sets out that the accused made statements that he was unemployed when he was employed.

H. P. Cavers acted as solicitor for the Unemployment Insurance Commission. He said Palechuck collected $140 in payments. Palechuck pleaded guilty to the charges, but speaking on his own behalf, said he worked only part time and was unemployed when he applied for insurance benefits.

Palechuck was not represented by counsel and due to the fact that he appeared confused as to the exact nature of the charges. Magistrate Hallett adjourned hearing until September 10 so that evidence might be produced by Mr. Cavers.

PEACH PICKERS GET A CHANCE TO REST
Transients Pour Into St. Catharines And Proceed To Stage Annual Drunk—Police Take Action.

(St. Catharines Standard)
The contingent of peach-pickers transients stopped off for a final celebration in St. Catharines yesterday which, as is customary resulted in a busy day for the police department.

In all, 14 men appeared in Magistrate H. D. Hallett's court today on public intoxication charges. Twelve of the prisoners said they had arrived in St. Catharines yesterday from the Toronto and Hamilton areas for the peach and grape harvest.

Said Magistrate Hallett: "You fellows who come over to the Niagara Peninsula to work on the fruit farms had better stay on the farms and not come into St. Catharines and get drunk."

Just to prove he meant what he said, Magistrate Hallett added: "Eleven dollars or seven days." All of the would-be peach pickers had expended cash on hand on yesterday's celebration so they took the seven days to get rested up... for another celebration or maybe peach picking.

The other two accused are home town boys who don't believe in peach picking or any other form of employment, and as they had been recent and frequent visitors on official business to the court, they received terms of 30 days to rest up.

SAFETY WARNING FOR LABOR DAY WEEK-END

Last Year There Were 15 Traffic Accident Deaths In The Province — It's a Bad Period.

Death worked overtime on Labour Day Holiday last year, Highways Minister Hon. George H. Doucett points out in a safety appeal to holiday motorists and pedestrians to "take it easy" over the coming week-end.

"There were fifteen traffic accidents deaths in the Province during the Labour Day week-end last year". Mr. Doucett states. "That fact alone should be enough to remind all motorists and pedestrians to take extra care. Throughout the year there was an average of one motor accident death every 13 hours; but in that 3-day holiday period at this time last the average was a death about every 8 hours."

The Labour Day week-end, coming at the end of the summer traffic peak is almost always a bad period for traffic accidents in Ontario. Thousands of people are out making use of the last of the summer holidays. Very large numbers of our American visitors are driving back to their homes and finally, more than half a million of the Province's children are having their last carefree fling before school starts again."

"Ontario's record of only one fatal accident over the August Civic Holiday week-end, despite the very large volume of traffic at the time, was the gratifying result of care and caution by motorists and pedestrians alike. Labour Day accidents can also be reduced by a united effort."

A MARINE FOREST

The Sargasso Sea is part of the Atlantic Ocean which lies so still within the swirling currents of the Gulf Stream that enormous quantities of seaweed have collected in the aggregate that they cover an area almost as large as Europe.

In his great voyage of discovery Columbus entered this sea, and it was he who gave it its name, calling it the sea of Seaweeds. It is about two million square miles in extent, and consists mainly of a seaweed called sargassum buceriferum or gulf weed. This weed is kept afloat on the surface by round air-cells on short stalks.

The Sargasso Sea is an enormous garden full of masses of seaweed weeds. Amid the weeds there are manta rays, crabs, weird creatures — jellyfish, great schools of fish — and also a host of derelict ships.

There is absolutely no truth in the rumour that A. & P. moved out of town because they were afraid of governmental control. But we do understand that the time is not far distant when there will only be one

Grimsby. What store will be the lucky one, we do not know.

that St. Catharines schools will be just as crowded as they have been for the past two years.

in the tower at the Canadian carillon completed by mid-summer as was previously anticipated.

REAL ESTATE

It is rumoured that a large Main street business block has been sold, but as yet this has not been substantiated by either the buyer, the seller or any real estate agent. Also, rumours are rife that one of the town's largest garages and service stations has been sold. This report has not been substantiated either.
As a matter of fact there are deals pending for several business properties but to date none of them have been closed up and until they are closed then there can be no sale.
